

FAMILY KINGDOM IN THE MEDIA

July 2008: Family Kingdom is spotlighted on the cover of Newsday's Travel Supplement.

August 2007: TripAdvisor announces that Family Kingdom is the fifth (5th) best amusement park in the United States outside of Orlando, according to traveler popularity and TripAdvisor editors.

September 2004: Turner South network's original program "Blue Ribbon" features Family Kingdom Amusement Park as a "blue ribbon" park.

On location at Family Kingdom:

In 2008, the Travel Channel filmed at Family Kingdom, using a variety of attractions as backdrops, including the Sling Shot Drop Zone.

In 2004, the music video for Kenney Chesney's hit song "Anything but Mine" was filmed at Family Kingdom, using a variety of attractions as backdrops, including the Hurricane, the Yo-Yo swing and the Giant Wheel.

The movie "Chasers" (released in 1994) used Family Kingdom as a setting.

The 1989 classic beach movie "Shag" was shot in part at Family Kingdom.